BANK STATEMENT GREAT SURPRISE

Notwithstanding Enormous Demands for Credits Showed Contraction in Loans $10,000,000.

HAS ENCOURAGING EFFECT

Notable Movements of Day, However, Were Confined to Specialties.

(By Associated Frees.)
NEW YORK, April 1.--The weekly banks statement confounded all prevous call-mates as to its character. Notwishstandmates as to its character. Notwishstanding the week's enormous demands for credits the banks report a contraction in loans of upwards of $10,000,000. The only explanation can be that the credits outstanding in the stock market by the banks have been withdrawn to that extent to meet requirements in their dibanks have been withdrawn to that extent to meet requirements in their directions and that loans have been made through trust companies and through other sources. There is no room to doubt that the volume of credita as a whole has been substantially expanded during the week. The indicated loss of cash of $1.00,000 is reduced in the showing of the bank statement to about $80,090. The appearance of the statement of the interest is an improvement on the margin of surplus to the extent of $2.185,200. The appearance of the statement had an encouraging effect on the demand for ystocks, but the day's notable incoments were confined to the list of specialities. This is in accordance with the professed expectation of the trading element that the movement to be looked for its to be in this class of stocks. The professional hands, but were indicative will see a revival of speculative demand of a confident feeling that next week will see a revival of speculative demand and a quick relaxation in the more and the confident feeling that hex week will see a revival of speculative demand and a quick relaxation in the more market. The reviews of the specualties confident feeling that next week will see a revival of speculative demand and a quick relaxation in the more market. The reviews of the specualties are sufficiently for the day's operations and the speculations in all lines are continued wide domand for funds in all lines of business. The market closed barely steady and to the best of socks amounted to $2,170,009.

(Reported for The Times-Dispatch by Dibreil Brothers.)

Danville, Va, April 1, 1905.

The sales for this week have been very large again, but show a decrease from last week. The offerings have been common and in bed order. Common fillers have been in better supply and easy, but not quotably lower than last week. Good fillers are firm and without change. Medium brights in better supply and easy without any material change in price. All grades odd beit cutters firm; vary few good to fine offering. Common wrappars sourcer and some stiffer in price. Good to fine wrappers quite scarce and condinue to be eagerly sought after at former prices.

The sales for the past month foot up 7.573.95 pounds as against $20,211 pounds for March, 1904. The sales to data smount to 29,103,60 pounds, as compared with 25,25,501 pounds for the 102 crop.

The Moving Wool.

In the great wave of popular feeling for Norwegian independence which is agitating Norway, the hero of the hour is Dr. Pridtiof Nansen, the explorer, and it is freely prophesied that he will be his country's next prime minister, if not her President, should the union with Sweden be broken.
